Cotton and polyester blends are durable fabrics. Even if it has a higher percentage of polyester. 80/20 cotton/polyester blends for example are very common because they have the softness and breathability of cotton and the desirable durability and flexibility of polyester. One of many examples is our Oxford shirt fabric with a composition of 70% cotton and 30% polyester. It is a comfortable fabric to wear and amongst others used by bus drivers.

Many of our clients are garment makers producing corporate uniform shirts and blouses to end-users in the Transport industry. Our blended cotton polyester elastane fabric article 5767 is a nice option. It has good stretch and recovery characteristics. It is comfortable to wear and you can wash it up to 60 degrees. Article 5838 is a good option too, because of the additional easycare finish.

It is not a surprise that crews of so many airlines worldwide are wearing shirts and blouses based on one of our fabrics. Some airlines choose a fine 100% cotton with an easycare finish such as article 2672 for their pilots.

While others prefer a blended fabric, for their cabin & ground staff, with a majority of cotton like article 7251. Just two types of fabrics which meet the specific customer's needs.

Traditional school uniforms still exist in a lot of countries globally. A very important requirement is durability; tear and tensile strength and excellent colour fastness. Article 9065 with a composition of 65% polyester and 35% cotton with a soft handle meets those requirements. Many of these institutions choose a white or blue colour, it is not exceptional to see uniform shirts and blouses in colourful checks and stripes, for example article 7340.

Civil face masks

The wearing of face masks during the COVID-19 pandemic has received varying recommendations from different public health agencies and governments. A fabric face mask is a mask made of a common textile and not certified for medical applications. Usually the composition is cotton but also blended fabrics are being used. The masks are worn over the nose and mouth.

Although they are less effective than medical-grade masks, many health authorities worldwide recommend that the general public use them. Tootal Fabrics (Holland) B.V. has a wide range of fabrics which are being used to produce so-called civil masks. Please ask for special finishing possibilities, like anti-bacterial against order.

At the office

Sustainable fabrics

Tootal Fabrics (Holland) B.V. offers a sustainable fabric collection, which we considered as a necessary step to contribute to a more sustainable approach in our industry and to the ecological awareness of the customers and consumers.

Reducing microfibers, which are polluting the world's oceans or using more materials with less environmental impact, sustainability is front and centre in the textile- and apparel industry.

We made first steps towards sustainability some years ago by ensuring that our entire fabric collection is Oekotex certified, covers Reach regulations and is therefore free of harmful chemicals. Eco-friendly fabrics like Tencel and bamboo are also part of our collection.

Tootal Fabrics (Holland) B.V. is a GOTS-certified company. GOTS (Global Organic Textile Standard) is a certification that stands for ecology and social responsibility. This standard is your best assurance that the raw materials from which fabrics or yarns were made, really are organic and that strict rules concerning eco-friendly production have been followed along the whole production chain.

Sustainable fabrics

An article can only be certified when the GOTS standard was followed in all previous steps in the production chain. The advantage of being a GOTS-certified company is, that this gives our customers the possibility of making GOTS certified garments themselves, provided of course that their companies are certified as well. Besides GOTS we are also certified by and therefore comply with the worldwide recognized standards such as: Organic Cotton Standard (OCS) & Global Recycled Standard (GRS). We are also member of the Better Cotton Initiative (BCI). Please ask our sales representatives for more information or request a sustainable catalogue.

Get inspired

Get inspired with more fabrics from our standard collection, for instance our Cotton or Cotton blended fabrics. Cotton is a strong fibre, and is therefore a durable fabric to use in the corporate industry. Fabrics made with polyester are smooth, light and feel soft when wearing. A combination of these two fibres is a perfect match for a lot of segments in the corporate market.
